

MOTORIST DRIVES INTO MOVING TRAIN

Joliet Man Critically Hurt At Wabash 159th St., Crossing

An automobile in which Charles A. Anselmino, 21 years old, George Agazzi and two young women, all of Joliet were riding in, crashed into the side of a north-bound Wabash freight train at the 159th street crossing south of Orland Tuesday night about 11 o'clock.

The automobile driven by Anselmino was heading west on 159th street. The railroad crossing has a red wig-wag flasher which can be seen for a long distance and the view of approaching trains is unobstructed when a car is going west. Just how it happened that Anselmino did not see the train is not known. One of the occupants of the auto saw the train when about 300 feet from the crossing, but before the driver could get his car under control it crashed into the side of the freight train. The train crew not knowing that their train had been struck by an auto kept on going and the first they knew about the accident was when one of the headlights of the wrecked auto was found hanging to one of the freight cars when the train pulled in the yards in Chicago.

Anselmino was found a short distance from the tracks after the crash and was taken by a passing motorist to the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, where it was learned he suffered severe scalp lacerations and a possible basal skull fracture. His condition has remained very grave. The other three occupants of the auto escaped injury.

Movies Gaining In Popularity

The movies shown at the Mokena public school every Wednesday night are continuing to draw good crowds as they fill a long felt want in the community. The party took place at night a very good picture will be shown entitled "Private Number" starring Robert Taylor and Loretta Young. A comedy reel will also be shown. Be sure to see this show.

Mystic Social

The chorus choir of the Green Garden Methodist church has planned a mystic social to be held in the church parlors Friday evening December 4 at 7:30 o'clock. A magician of exceptional ability will entertain. In addition a splendid program of songs, musical numbers and plays will be given by the choir members. A special invitation is given to attend this entertainment.

Tinley Couple Feted On Fortieth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Winkler, Sr., of Tinley Park were feted by their many friends Saturday evening in honor of their fortieth wedding anniversary. The party took place at 147th and Ridgeland Ave., where they made their home for the past six years.

Mr. and Mrs. Winkler were married on November 13, 1896 in Roseland, and the first fifteen years of their wedded life was spent there but the next nineteen were spent in Wisconsin and thence to their present home in Tinley Park.

Fourteen children were born to the Winkler union, eleven in Wisconsin, who are still living and three in Roseland who have passed away. The eleven children living are: Mrs. Margaret Arndt, Theodore Jr., Peter, Mrs. Bertha Williamson, John, Florence, Edward, Fred, Viola, Loretta and Ervin.

After an enjoyable evening of dancing and refreshments the friends went home wishing the couple many more happy years of wedded life.

To Hold Poultry Bunco At Orland

A poultry bunco will be given in the Orland Park Public School on Friday evening, November 20th by the Orland Lutheran Men's club. Lunch will be served and lots of poultry, chicken, ducks, geese and turkeys will be awarded as prizes.

Musical Tea

The May flower Circle of the Green Garden Methodist church is sponsoring a musicale tea in the church parlors Friday afternoon, November 27 at 1:45 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged. Refreshments will be served. A free will offering will be taken. A cordial invitation is extended to friends to attend this social affair.

MONKEY FACED OWLS CAPTURED BY MOKENA MAN

Walter Cappel, residing on the Wolf road south of Mokena, was very much surprised last Thursday evening when he was attacked by owls as he opened his pigeon coop.

After a lively battle, he captured three hostile birds and was astonished when he brought them into the light. The owls had faces just like monkeys and are of a species known as the barn yard owl or monkey-faced owl.

The owls had killed a number of Mr. Cappel's pigeons before he captured them. On Friday the owls which had been placed in a box, were exhibited at the Mokena public school and later they were presented to the Brookfield Zoo.

Mr. Cappel shot another owl of the same species and this one has been stuffed and mounted and is now on exhibition in the Morry Larson tavern in Mokena.

This is the first time that monkey faced owls have been seen in this section. They are oddly shaped birds and are widely distributed over the two Americas and are fond of dwelling in man-made structures, as church belfries and the towers of public buildings being their favorite homes. Like other owls, this species, sometimes called the Monkey-faced Owl and Barn Owl, devours its prey whole: a curious rotary action of the stomach casting up the indigestible portion thru the mouth in a "pellet." Examination of these show that the Barn Owl is a most useful destroyer of rats and mice and so a valuable feathered friend.

Band Concert At Mokena Nov. 27

The next big event in Mokena will be the band concert to be sponsored by the Mokena Band Association in the Mokena school auditorium, Friday evening November 27 at 8 p. m.

The newly formed Mokena band will play several numbers in connection with the band concert to be played by the Frankfort Band.

Tickets for the event are now on sale and everyone is invited to attend this concert. When the school children call on you to sell a ticket for this event, it will mean a great deal not only to them, but to the community as well, if you will purchase a ticket and thus assist in promoting a worthy civic project and encourage the young musicians of our community.

By helping our young folks to promote a good local band, the later will prove a real asset to our community. Let us all get behind this affair and assist in putting it over in a big way.

Home made candy and pop corn will be on sale during the concert next Friday night. Your presence is much desired. Bring your friends and neighbors as well.

St. Jude's Men's Club to Hold Bunco

The St. Jude's Men's Club of New Lenox, will hold a bunco and card party December 8 at 8 p. m. in the New Lenox school auditorium for benefit of St. Jude's church.

Tinley Girl Married In Roseland

At simple but yet charming rites Saturday afternoon, Florence Winkler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Winkler, Sr. of Tinley Park, became the bride of Joseph Urbaniak of 11819 S. State St., Chicago.

The couple were married in Roseland and attended by the brides sisters, Viola and Loretta, and Kasimir Jasica and Nick Bosak, friends of the groom.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride where the newlyweds were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

The couple are at home to their many friends at 11819 S. State St.

New Lenox Unit Meets Nov. 20th

The New Lenox unit of the National Union for Social Justice will hold a very important meeting in the New Lenox public school auditorium Friday Nov. 20 at 8:00 p. m. A special order from Father Coughlin will be read. Everyone is invited to attend.

Orland Woman's Club Puts On Interesting Program

An audience of seventy-five persons greeted Mr. John McConaha Friday evening in Creer hall.

The meeting was called to order by our president, Mrs. Paul Sanders. Minutes of previous meeting were read by Mrs. Harriet Doak.

Mrs. Sanders then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Ella Loebe, who presided as program chairman. The Misses Ruth Gee, Vera Zerbes and Dolores Doctor played several pieces on the piano, together and solo.

Mrs. Loebe introduced Mr. John McConaha to the audience, and also presented Mrs. George Ward and Mr. Edgar Graves.

Mr. McConaha presented two steps in preserving game. "First step is to preserve game for the coming generation by observing the fishing and hunting laws. The second step are the fish hatcheries and game farms."

A new thought in preservation is 'game management', which consists of food, protection, and a home under state preservation. Conservation must be taken out of politics as has been done in 21 states.

Films were shown of the fur animals and all kinds of fowl. Mostly to explain the precaution taken to raise a new crop of ducks, geese, pheasant and quail. Several slides were in color.

Mr. McConaha would like to have all young men interested in this project. He will help any club to get started in individual game management and the thought of preservation of our wild life.

Chicago Couple Married In Home Of Frankfort J. P.

Miss Jennie Garzotto and Mr. Charles Eisenbrandt of Chicago were united in marriage Saturday, November 14 at 3 o'clock in the home of Justice John M. Clark. Miss Mildred Benjamin attended the bride. Mr. Hilmar Ingebreten of Chicago acted as best-man. The bride was becomingly gowned in brown silk crepe with a shoulder corsage of Gardenias and Sunburst Rosebuds, with accessories to match. The bridesmaid was gowned in midnight blue silk crepe with shoulder corsage of Gardenias and Sunburst Rosebuds. The groom wore a suit of brown, the same shade as the bride's gown and the best-man wore a midnight blue suit to match the bridesmaid's gown. After a short honeymoon the newlyweds will be at home to their many friends at 11557 Lafayette avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Demand For Cars

There is a demand for new cars. The Chevrolet and Ford dealers in Mokena are both reporting a good trade. The Mokena Motor Sales who handle the Chevrolet line, report the sale of four new cars in a week, while the Cooper & Hostert Garage, Ford dealers, also report a like amount of Ford sales.

Among the new Ford owners in Mokena, is Gerald Dunn, principal of the Mokena public school.

King of Birds Stuffed Eagle Now

A bald eagle that was shot recently by Alvin Kohl near Mokena is now on display in Morry's Tavern in Mokena. The eagle had a wing spread of seven feet. A taxidermist in the Stateville penitentiary stuffed and mounted the bird which was placed on display last Friday.

Postmasters Hand Out New Social Security Blanks

The postmasters in New Lenox, Frankfort, Mokena, Tinley Park, Orland Park and other nearby post-offices have been handing out the new National Security Insurance blanks to the business men of their respective communities. All business men who come under the act, whether they employ one or more persons, must fill out these blanks applying for a number. They are required to give certain data and should return the cards filled out to the postmasters no later than November 21. Anyone not filling out the blanks will be turned in to the National Security Board as not giving the information desired.

Next Monday the postmasters and mail carriers will deliver questionnaire cards to all employees coming under the act and they will also be asked to fill out these cards giving certain data asked for and each employee will then be assigned a number.

On and after January 1, 1937, every employer coming under the act will be required to deduct one per cent from the wages he is paying his help and will himself also be required to give a like amount for the security fund. After six months, a report will have to be made to the security board and later on, reports will have to be made by employers every three months.

Thus far, the postmasters in this section report very good co-operation from the business men and Postmaster A. J. Tulley of Orland Park, reports an even 100 per cent co-operation as some of the cards were filled out and returned to him the same day they were given out.

Anyone not familiar with the rulings of the new act can secure the needed information by applying to their local postmaster.

Warning Bell Moved Nearer New Lenox Crossing

In order to afford better protection for the railroad crossing west of the Rock Island depot in New Lenox, the railroad has had the warning bell removed from the north side of the tracks to a new location on the south side of the tracks near the crossing. The warning bell formerly was located about 75 feet away, west of the flag shanty. By having the bell nearer to the crossing it can be heard better by those using the crossing whether on foot or driving.

Former Orland Park Resident Seeking Divorce

Edna H. Kreimeier of Joliet has a bill for divorce in the Will County circuit court in which she charges that her husband Roland W. Kreimeier, now located in Wilmington, Delaware, deserted her in September of 1934. They were married in Orland Park September 25, 1918 and have one son. Mrs. Kreimeier is represented by Attorney William R. McCabe. She was formerly Edna Junker, daughter of Wm. Junker, prominent farmer of Orland township.

Household Questions

To clean fireplace bricks, cover them with a paste made of powdered pumice and household ammonia. Let it dry for an hour, then scrub with warm soapy water.

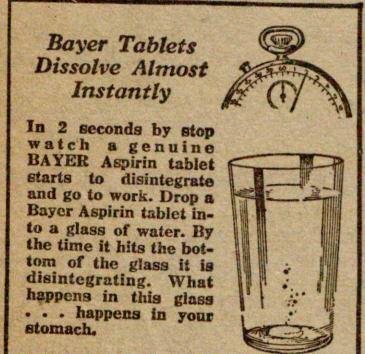

A little salt added to pumpkin sauce will greatly improve the flavor.

Cooked prunes stuffed with celery and nuts make a tempting salad. Stuffed prunes can also be used as a garnish for chops, roasts or steaks.

To braise roasts, steaks or chops first brown the meat, then put in a tightly covered utensil with very little water either on the top of stove or in oven and continue cooking slowly until meat is tender.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

Sawdy pulled a moment at his mustache. "No hurry," he said reflectively. "It's early yet for him. If he's our man, he's got a pocketful of money to blow." He thought a minute further. "Look here, Scotch! Tell our boys over there at the bar to string out quiet and meet back of the barn. Watch your chance. Speak around to the hitch rack and get the sorrel down to the barn on an old feed-bill claim. I'll tackle Barney in the saloon and see what chance there is to gettin' him down there. Got a rope ready?"

"I have."
"Vamos!"

McAlpin joined the men at the bar. Sawdy slipped out the back door and, half a block down the alley, walked out into River street and down to the Red Front saloon.

But from the moment the big adventurer stepped out of the back door of one saloon and in at the front door of the other, a curious change took place. He had left Spotts' place sober—Sawdy was in fact a very moderate man. He strode into the Red Front reeling.

The bar was well filled. Sawdy saw at a glance that among the men lined up there were a number of town loafers who never drank except at some body's expense. When Sawdy caught sight of Redstock with the loafers around him, inference was swift and correct. Barney had money.

The saloonkeeper, Harry Boland, foxy-eyed and alert at the head of the bar, saw Sawdy stagger in through the green baize; he watched the big fellow closely. Sawdy zigzagged back towards the loafers among whom Barney was holding forth.

Boland, a man of ripe experience in appraising all stages of intoxication, was suspicious, since Henry Sawdy was no drunk; Boland had never before seen him intoxicated. But Sawdy was an artist and did not make the mistake of the actor who plays the sober man trying to appear drunk. Sawdy was the drunken man trying to appear sober.

He greeted Barney gravely, then ordered drinks for everybody in Barney Redstock's honor. Having lingered over the round, Sawdy cast his eye approvingly upon the thirsty crowd, passed the forefinger of his right hand thoughtfully under each wing of his mustache in turn, drew from a vest pocket a gold double eagle, and made a general proposal.

"I'll match any man here for twenty-dollar gold pieces." It was a fairly safe offer, because he well knew all the loafers put together could not raise twenty dollars. But he had an object in view.

Barney, after some shilly-shallying, accepted the challenge. He asked Boland to lend him a gold piece. When Boland produced a twenty-dollar coin and tossed it out to Barney, it did not take Sawdy long to figure out that Barney had money and that it was in the keeping of the saloonkeeper. Sawdy, notoriously lucky at matching, lost out after several trials; he quit forty dollars to the bad. But he had Barney greatly inflated by his triumph, with the whole room crowding eagerly around the contestants.

After a round of drinks at Barney's charge, Sawdy brought the talk around to a fine-looking sorrel outside at the hitch rack. Barney claimed it. Sawdy wanted to buy it. Barney demurred—it wasn't for sale.

Boland heard the talk. He drew Barney to the rear end of the bar. "Sell it to him, you fool," whispered Boland. "Don't you see he's drunk as a fiddler? You can get twice what the horse is worth."

Thus encouraged, Barney stepped out of doors with Sawdy, followed by a little circle of the curious.

The horse was gone. This fact caused no great excitement; Barney suggested he had got loose and strayed up or down the street and that they take a look around to find him. The curiosity of the crowd weakened, and they re-entered the saloon, hoping for another chance to get a drink. Sawdy and Barney walked down the street together, wrangling as they went over the mischance and the merits of the missing horse. As the pair passed McAlpin's barn it occurred to Sawdy they had better look in and ask for information.

CHAPTER X

A hanging lantern lighted the barn gangway dimly. Sawdy's call for a hostler was answered by McAlpin himself, who, lantern in hand, ambled in his peculiar gait briskly forward.

"Hello, Mac," exclaimed Sawdy, waving like a tall tree in a number four breeze. "We're looking for Barney's horse." He continued gruffly—"got loose up the street just now—seen anything of a stray?"

McAlpin, raising his lantern looked at Redstock. "Why, yes, I seen a stray," he admitted sulkily.

"Was it a sorrel?" asked Sawdy with some hope.

"It was a sorrel, Sawdy; saddled and bridled. What about it?"

"It's probably Barney's horse. Let's see it. Where is it?"

McAlpin jerked his head back over his shoulder. "In the box stall. Your horse, Barney?"

"Sure, it's my horse."

"Right this way, Barney," returned McAlpin. "Put out your cigars, boys, and come along with me," he added, lantern in hand. He scuttled down the gangway, Redstock and Sawdy after him, stopped at the stall box, hung his lantern on a high gangway hook, unlatched the stall door, and pointed within. "There's your horse, Barney. Maybe I better give him a bit of oats before you go. . . . No? Water then?"

Redstock and Sawdy had stepped into the stall with McAlpin. The liverman led the horse out. Redstock started to follow; Sawdy laid a hand on his shoulder. "Just a minute. I want to talk to you, Barney. We'll join you in a minute, Mac. Get out the black bottle. But leave the lantern."

"What's up?" asked Redstock, eyeing Sawdy closely, and always suspicious.

Sawdy was standing backed against one side of the box stall. "Barney," he said in confidential fashion, "I'd like to have just a little horse-to-horse talk with you."

"What d'you mean, horse-to-horse talk?" snapped Barney.

"Just this: Do you feel just exactly right, leavin' your money with Harry Boland?"

"What do you mean?"

"Do you feel safe? I ask you as man to man, Barney, and an old friend, do you feel safe, leaving a roll with Boland?"

Barney fumbled mentally. "Why shouldn't I?" he countered bluntly.

"I'd hate to see you, after this trouble you've had, lose your money with Harry Boland," persisted the cowman. "I'll tell you honest—and you can tell the critter himself if you like—I wouldn't never leave five hundred of my money with Harry Boland."

"Never had it to leave, did you?"

"Well, no foolin', Barney, wouldn't do it. So that's what I say, as man to man—keep your money in the bank, not in a dive. Have you got a receipt for your money?"

"No."

"How much money are you leavin' with him?"

"None of your damned business, that's how much. I'm headin' up the street. Get out of the way."

"Don't get sore, Barney. I'm meanin' the best for you. Just wait a minute an' I'll walk up the street with you—gettin' kind of thirsty myself. Did you hear, Barney, about Bill Denison's place gettin' burned down?"

He Could See Redstock's Eyes Flashing Green.

"I heard about a fire out that way—what about it?" demanded Redstock.

"Why, nothin'—nothin' at all. But, Barney, this is why I wanted to talk to you: There's folks here in town that don't know you as well as I do, are mean enough to say you know a lot more about that fire than you want to tell. I claim they're wrong—what'll I tell 'em?"

"Tell 'em to go to hell."

"Suppose they won't do it, Barney?" asked Sawdy calmly.

Redstock shuffled angrily. "Look here, Sawdy. You can't bunk me any more. If they don't want to go to hell, you go for 'em."

With this suggestion, Redstock started again for the stall door. Sawdy's hand came down a bit heavier on Barney's shoulder. The slippery fellow tried to jerk away when Sawdy's fingers sank deep into the coat and shirt of his victim. "Barney," he protested solemnly, "I don't like to see an old friendship broken up by thoughtless words."

"A hell of a friendship," snorted Redstock.

"Barney, I want to be friends with you. What's the facts about that fire?"

With a volley of oaths, Redstock tore loose from Sawdy's grasp, backed hurriedly away, and tried to spring over the side wall. Sawdy was too quick. He jumped to him, caught him by the arm, and slammed him halfway across the stall. Barney landed on his hands and knees, sprang to his feet, and faced his old-time acquaintance with wicked eyes. In the dim light of the lantern, high in the gangway, Sawdy caught the flash of the blade of a knife—lying, Mexican fashion, in Barney's right hand.

Both were quick. Redstock, smaller and lighter, could strike and spring like a wildcat, but he faced a foe who, though larger and heavier, was esteemed among his fellows as one hard to corner. Sawdy held the door side of the stall with his back to the light. He could see Redstock's eyes flashing green. Redstock wanted to get close enough to Sawdy to cut him and jump through the door; but he feared the terrific grip of the cowman's fingers on his wrists before he should get the knife into play.

Sawdy carried his gun—Redstock had left his own with Boland—but he disdained to use it on a partly unarmed man. It was no part of his program to get himself embroiled with the law by shooting the criminal; what he and his cronies wanted from Redstock was information.

It took only an instant for Sawdy to perceive that he could not safely hold his stand in front of the stall door. The lantern light was too uncertain—he could not follow Redstock's eyes—part of the time he could hardly follow his jumpy steps.

In a moment, both men, one big, the other small, were jumping about the stall like boxers stripped for the ring. But Sawdy, though big, was the fastest on his feet among the cowmen that rode the Gunlock ranges. He had little alcohol aboard, was naturally as quick as a flash, and knew he was facing the most dangerous man with a knife along the Spanish Sinks. Ten youthful years spent among Mexican bandits, together with a lean and jumpy physical make-up, had given Barney Redstock the name of a mean man with a knife, and Sawdy had no intention of adding to the outlaw's reputation as a killer, if he could help it.

The fight was in the lap of the gods. A misstep or a foot slip might end it any second. Sawdy was hoping his comrades secreted out in the corral would hear the scuffle and come in. But he was just stubborn enough not to call for help.

Barney, enraged at his plight, was breathing hard, and wind was too precious to waste in words. This silent struggle for the one slight advantage that would end the fight went on to the music of jerky breaths and nimble footing. It was soon a question as to whose wind would give out first—Sawdy, heavier, was at a disadvantage in endurance. While they feinted and jumped about, his foot slipped.

Barney saw the opening. He lunged forward. Sawdy instinctively whirled sidewise and threw up his knee to save his stomach. The savage thrust of Barney's knife caught the calf of his leg. As the cowman went down, his fingers gripped Barney's wrist. With a mere twist of the deadly grip learned long ago in Panhandle knife fights, he snapped like matches the two bones of Barney's forearm.

The wily outlaw screamed. He was through; the rear gangway doors were flung open, and the confederates came running in from the corral.

From the darkness of the box stall came only the swish of hard breathing and the oaths and cries of Barney. Lefever grasped the ball of the lantern and threw the light rays within.

"Henry!" he yelled in alarm. "What's a-matter, pard? What's wrong?" He unlatched the gate of the stall as he called and hastened inside with Scott and Page at his heels. McAlpin ran down from the office. It was a moment before Lefever could make out just what was happening on the floor, as Barney, half choked, writhed under the remorseless grip that closed his windpipe. Sawdy, spread out on his stomach, lay, a huge bulk, with one arm over his antagonist. Only his heavy breathing indicated life. "Henry!" exclaimed Lefever. "What the hell's happened?"

"Nothing's happened yet, John. Look at my leg. Where's his knife?"

"God a'mighty! It's in your leg, Henry."

Lefever started to draw it out. "Hold on, John! Don't touch that till you get a tourniquet on. Who's here?" His heavy bloodshot eyes turned on Scott. "Bob! Look-see whether he's slit an artery or a vein. Hold the lantern there, John."

Scott found blood spurting from the wound. He fashioned a tourniquet from a thong of rawhide.

"Get up and get Carpy, quick!" muttered McAlpin to Page. "What you moonin' about? Henry is bad cut. Run, Ben!"

"All right. You hold Barney," growled Page, turning over his writhing prisoner.

Turning to the prostrate cowman while Scott twisted the tourniquet, McAlpin, gripping Redstock, gave orders to Sawdy; the liverman always took the stage. "Henry!" he shouted, in his excitement. "Lay right where you are. Don't stir till Carpy comes. Why didn't you call for help?" he thundered at Sawdy.

"Ain't never learned how yet," retorted the wounded man majestically.

Carpy reached the box stall ten minutes later.

The doctor held up the lantern. "Hell's bells!" he exclaimed to McAlpin and the hostler. "Don't leave the man lying in this dirt. Henry," he knelt at Sawdy's head—"what have they been doing? Who stuck you?"

"Doc," declared the notorious bachelor, "you might say I stuck myself. Sew me up and send the bill to my father-in-law after I get married, will you?"

GOLDEN TEXT—I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. Phil. 4:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—In the World's Greatest City.

JUNIOR TOPIC—An Ambassador in Chains.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Prisoner Speaks for Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Chained But Not Silenced.

The rescue of Paul from the Jewish mob by the Roman authorities resulted in consideration of his case on their part to determine what manner of man he was, and why his words and actions provoked such violent reactions among the Jewish subjects of Rome in Judea. When it appeared that Festus, who was procurator, was inclined to turn him over to the Jews at Jerusalem, Paul, knowing of their hatred, makes

I. An Appeal to Caesar (Acts 23:16-19).

It was an act of great significance, and largely determined the course of Paul's life and ministry until his death. It is a question upon which there is no little difference of opinion whether Paul was right in making this appeal. Perhaps Dr. G. Campbell Morgan has best gathered up the truth of the matter in saying, "His way was that of an attitude revealing for all time what the duty of the Christian man is—to be true to his Lord, to be true to his conscience, to be loyal to the powers that be, and to make his appeal to them where necessary, for protection, in order that he may continue his work in accordance with the will of his Lord." Paul made no appeal to save his own life, but he did want to continue his ministry. And this he was permitted to do, for after he had come to Rome we find him to be

II. A Prisoner Preacher (vv. 20-24, 30, 31).

He was chained, but not silenced. He was anxious that those in Rome should "see" and "speak with" him (v. 20). They knew of the Christian "sect" only by rumor as one "which everywhere is spoken against" (v. 22). He now proclaimed the truth to them, and with what results? "Some believed . . . and some disbelieved" (v. 23). Again, we see that the greatest of all preachers met just the same encouragement and discouragement that we face.

The witness and messenger is not judged by the success that crowns his efforts, but by the faithfulness with which he discharges his duty. Let us not condone our own carelessness or inefficiency by saying that even Paul was unsuccessful; but if we have been faithful and diligent, let us be encouraged even though some disbelieve.

Verse 30 indicates that Paul either had a large measure of liberty, being permitted even as a prisoner to dwell in a private house, or that he was tried and acquitted and continued to work in Rome for a period of years. Whichever may be true we cannot but admire the faithful testimony of this man upon whose body time and trials had borne heavily, but whose spirit was as young and as powerful as the message he presented. And what was his message? We find it in his epistle to the Roman church. It was

III. Justification by Faith (Rom. 5:6-11).

Christian men and women are those who were weak (v. 6), ungodly (v. 6), unrighteous sinners (v. 7, 8), and enemies of God (v. 10). But having been justified by his blood (v. 9), they are "saved" (v. 9). What a beautiful word—"saved!" Brought back to God, "reconciled to God through the death of his Son" (v. 10), we are indeed saved if we have accepted him as our Saviour.

This was Paul's message, and it is our message to a lost world.

Count Your Mercies

Be on the lookout for mercies. The more we look for them the more of them will we see. Blessings brighten when we count them. Out of the determination of the heart the eyes see. If you want to be gloomy, there's gloom enough to keep you glum; if you want to be glad, there's gleam enough to keep you glad. Say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits." Better lose count in his enumerating your blessings than lose your blessings in telling over your troubles. "Be thankful unto him and bless his name."—Malb. D. Babcock, D. D.

A True Life

One truly Christian life will do more to prove the divine origin of Christianity than many lectures. It is of much greater importance to develop Christian character, than to exhibit Christian evidences. —J. M. Gibson.

Power of the Spirit

The spirit of a person's life is ever shedding some power, just as a flower is steadily bestowing fragrance upon the air.—T. Starr King.

Intellectual Powers

OUR intellectual and active powers increase with our affection. The scholar sits down to write, and all his years of meditation do not furnish him with one good thought, or happy expression; but it is only necessary to write a letter to a friend, and, forthwith, troops of gentle thoughts invest themselves, on every hand, with chosen words.—Emerson.

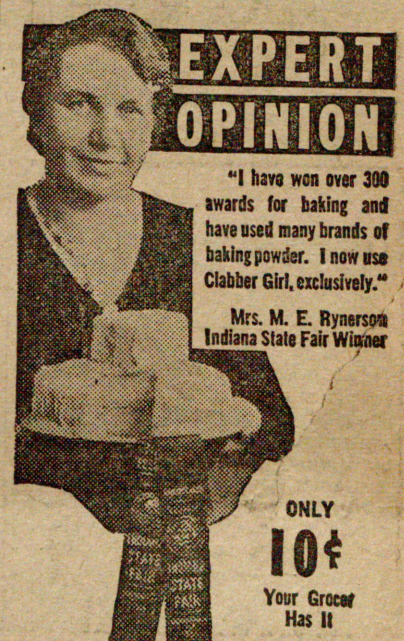

The moment you feel ar. attack of discouragement coming on, arouse yourself from this terrible influence, for discouragement is death to success.

Not on Relief
The banker was questioning the Negro applicant for a chauffeur's job.
"Are you married?" the banker asked.
"Nawsah, boss," replied the applicant. "Nawsah; Ah makes mah own livin'."

Just in Time
"Ye-es," hesitate the bridegroom, "these cakes are pretty good, but don't you think there ought to be more—"
"Your mother made them," interrupted the bride, quickly.
"—of them?" ended he.—Guelph Mercury.

Utilitarian
"Why do you make fun of hoss and buggy days?"
"I don't," answered Senator Sorghum. "But after getting hi by an automobile and losing my salary at the races I can't help wishing the plain old hosses and buggies could have stayed hitched up together."

Pedestrians Protected

Applying the rule of common sense, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has defined the rights of pedestrians, motorists and street cars at crossings where traffic signal lights are used. If the light is changed after a pedestrian has started across the street, motorists and street cars must give him the right of way to complete his journey.

When You Want to Alkalize Stomach Fast

Try This Amazing Fast Way—The "Phillips" Way Millions Are Adopting

On every side today people are being urged to alkalize their stomach. And thus ease symptoms of "acid indigestion," nausea and stomach upsets. To gain quick alkalization, just do this: Take two teaspoons of PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA 30 minutes after eating. OR—take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Relief comes almost at once—usually in a few minutes. Nausea, "gas"—fullness after eating and "acid indigestion" pains leave. You feel like a new person. Try this way. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable, new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Each one equals a teaspoon of the liquid. Only 25¢ a box at all drug stores.

AT LAST A COUGH RELIEF—THAT ALSO SPEEDS RECOVERY

Remember the name! It's FOLEY'S HONEY & TARI Double-acting. One set of ingredients quickly soothes, relieves tickling, hacking, coughing... coats irritated throat linings to keep you from coughing. Another set reaches the bronchial tubes, loosens phlegm, helps break up a cough due to a cold and speeds recovery. For quick relief and speeded-up recovery, ask your druggist for double-acting FOLEY'S HONEY & TARI. Ideal for children, too. Get a bottle today!

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

CHORAL NEWS

The Music Hour Club sang at the Father's Night program Friday Nov.
13. They sang, "Allah's Holiday"
by Friml; "Goin' Home" by Dvorak and "A Merry Life" by Denza.

Due to the fact that we are busy preparing an Achievement program for Friday Nov. 20, the Music Hour club postponed their weekly meeting, but it will be resumed next week.

Recent visitors of Rev. and Mrs.
Hedler were their son Harold and wife of Newaygo, Mich. Mrs. H. Hyslop and her mother, Mrs. Flaherty of Oak Park, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. L.
Seidemann and son, Mr. and Mrs.
Chas. Truse and mesdames Schoger,
Rice and Lloyd of Aurora, Ill.

Father's Night, sponsored by the Tinley Park PTA in the school auditorium, last Friday night was very well attended.

A very fine program was presented and Mr. Otto Reich, the speaker of the evening gave an interesting specially prepared talk with lantern slides about the Indians who roamed
this section years ago, when Tinley Park was known as New Bremen.

Mr. Reich gave a very graphic account of the old Indian trails, right in our own vicinity such as the Old Sauk Trail, the Indian Boundary,
one and a half miles south of Tinley Park and the road now used from Tinley Park to Oak Forest. The old trading post at Chesterton, Ind., was also of special interest. All present greatly enjoyed this program.

Mrs. John Schult Jr., who underwent a major operation in St. Francis hospital in Blue Island last week is somewhat improved.

The Firemen's Association of Cook and Will counties will meet next Monday night, the meeting place to be announced.

Ben Sippel of Blue Island, former town clerk of Orland Park, visited with Tinley friends Wednesday.

Postmaster Paul Rauffoh attended society Sunday afternoon.

The Niagara Girls club have been carrying on some note worthy projects of late. They have been providing dinners for a needy family and have donated to a local community project. They are planning other activities for the coming holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Roman Gonia and daughter will spend Thanksgiving Day with relatives in Chicago.

Hick & Mesenbrink received a carload of 700 bushels of Wisconsin potatoes the forepart of the week.

Mrs. Wm. Knieriem who recently underwent an operation in St. Francis hospital, Blue Island returned home Tuesday.

Mrs. Robt. Hohenstein underwent an operation in St. Francis hospital this week.

All the business places with the exception of the taverns, will close Thanksgiving day.

MOKENA

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schmidt entertained the Jolly Twelve Pinochle club in their home Saturday evening.

Prizes in pinochle were awarded to Mrs. Fred Hentsch, Mrs. Hugh Deadmore, Hugh Deadmore and John Jensen.

Mrs. Wm. Lowe visited with Miss Dora Miller in Kankakee, Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Bradley and son Billy spent Sunday with relatives in Chicago.

Miss Ruth Lowe spent Tuesday in Chicago.

Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Moritz called on Mokena friends this week.

Miss Genevieve Pfleger entertained the members of the M. E. Sunday School class of which Mrs. Florence
Steel is the teacher, in her home last Friday evening.

In the absence of Miss Helen Cappel who could not be present because of illness, Mrs.
Steel, had charge of the discussion for the evening, the topic of which was "Gossip." Many points were out, among which were the difference between constructive criticism and willful harming gossip.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler attended the anniversary service of the Morning Star Mission in Joliet Monday evening. A very interesting service was held.

Mokena St. Mary Catholic church conducted a Feathered Card and Bunco party in the hall Thursday evening. Prizes were poultry. A good attendance was present.

Mrs. August Pfleger entertained the members of the ENO card club in her home Wednesday afternoon as a farewell party in honor of one of the members, Mrs. Anna Hirsch, who leaves soon to spend the winter in Florida.

A very delicious luncheon was served at one o'clock from one long table which was beautifully in the setting. Large yellow Mums were used as decorations. After the luncheon, 500 was played at four tables.
Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Aug.
Jauck, Mrs. Anna Hirsch and Mrs.
Tom Moore.

This card club was formed over thirty years ago, with Mrs. Hirsch being one of the organizers. Six of the original members are still playing 500 with this same club.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs.
Fred Warning, president of the club,
on behalf of the members, presented Mrs. Hirsch with a Bon Voyage gift to which Mrs. Hirsch responded graciously, thanking the members for the love as shown in the gift. All wished Mrs. Hirsch a healthy, happy winter, a pleasant trip and reminded her that each would be waiting for the spring to come when they would have her again in their midst, playing 500 with them as usual.

"A pleasant journey and a speedy return."

ARMISTICE DAY

On November 11, 1918, a warweary world celebrated the signing of the Armistice which brought to an end the greatest and most terrible war in all history.

With shouts of joy and prayers of thanksgiving, humanity welcomed the birth of peace. Peace, we believed, would endure forevermore.
It was incredible that the cruelty and futility of war, the reckless squandering of human life and property, human happiness and security, could ever again involve the nations of the world. All creeds and races, all nations and faiths were one in a burning determination to end all wars.

And today! How the picture has changed! On November 11, 1936, we observed the eighteenth anniversary of the Armistice. Orations and ceremonies, pageants and processions celebrated anew the ending of the World War. But what should be a glorious anniversary is clouded today with the threat of new warfare—with the shadow of international jealousies and suspicions, greed and oppression. Wars of invasion, civil wars, internal revolutions and the rise of tyranny mock the hope of permanent world peace.
Today we face the unhappy realization that war is not ended, that peace is still a dream, and that the Armistice of November 11, 1918, marked but a temporary halt in the belligerency which characterizes international relations today.

Peace conferences have failed — disarmament agreements have proved to be only mockeries. War exists and new wars threaten. To the United States of America, only one path lies open. We must create and maintain peace for America, regardless of conditions elsewhere in the world.
We must safeguard our position of isolation—we must guarantee to the American people the security to which they are entitled.

This program is idealistic but it is also possible. The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has formulated a peace-for-America plan which we know to be practical. This confidence is based on the fact that we are an organization of war veterans. In our ranks are men who have served under the Stars and Stripes in every war and campaign in which the United States has been involved for the last 39 years.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 15.

The Golden Text was, "If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God" (Romans 8:13).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "We know that whosoever is born of God sinn-eth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not. And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true,
and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life" (1 John 5:18, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook,
"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:
"The belief that life and sensation are in the body should be overcome by the understanding of

More Inventions Needed Says Chevrolet Official

More inventions, not fewer, are needed to gear the wheels of mass production to greater speed and provide additional production that will bring unemployment to a minimum. M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, told members of the Advertising Club of New York at its annual automobile meeting there today.

Mr. Coyle, who was introduced to the advertising men and automotive leaders by Henry T. Ewald, president of the Campbell-Ewald Company, urged a greater use of machinery to lead mass production industry to even greater heights in the future.

"We need more, not less, new inventions," Mr. Coyle declared. "We need more goods at a lower price, within a range where more of our people can be induced to buy, and can afford to pay—not less goods at higher prices. Our unemployment problem cannot possibly be solved by any other method."

Mr. Coyle drew a picture of the economic laws that determine the effect of production costs on selling price, of selling price on volume, and of volume on employment figures, citing the history of Chevrolet as an example of how mass production works.

"Twenty years ago Chevrolet was producing an open touring car at a price of nearly $2200 list," Mr. Coyle said. "It produced approximately 3,000 units a year, employed a few hundred men, and its purchases and freight tonnage were not particularly important either to the sources of supply or to the transportation companies. Only a small number of dealers and salesmen were required to distribute its cars.

"Today Chevrolet is offering an infinitely better product at prices below $700 for even the most expensive model. The annual production for 1936 will exceed one and one-quarter million units, with many records above 6,400 cars.

"This means that more than the annual production of twenty years ago is now built in the morning of each working day, and an equal quantity in the afternoon. Even this rate of production is not always sufficient to supply the field demand during the high volume months.

"More than 60,000 persons are now employed on Chevrolet's payroll—the company requires 10,000 tons of material each working day—and it would require 45 complete freight trains of 50 cars each, to handle inbound and outbound shipments necessary for one day's production.

"There are now also 10,000 dealers with their 80,000 employees, engaged in the distribution of this one line of cars.

"The increase in the direct and indirect employment that has been accomplished was made possible only thru offering improved product at lower prices—prices so low that many people desired to buy and could afford to pay.

"Lower prices were attained by cost reductions, and cost reductions were principally due to improved manufacturing methods and the use of so-called labor-saving machinery. This demonstrates the practical operation of the cycle-reduction of cost and price, increase in volume and employment—and without machinery this result could not have been attained."

With the increased use of machinery, and the consequent decrease of manufacturing costs, Mr. Coyle explained, the total labor requirement is increased thru higher volume.

"The fact that the hourly wage rates of the automotive industry are the highest of any industry in the world today shows the effect of this practice over a period of time," declared Mr. Coyle.

He credited the use of machinery which has so deeply influenced the four factors of cost and price, column and employment, for the unusual advances that have taken place within the automobile industry.

Mr. Coyle declared that the industry has every reason to believe that America will in the future require more, not less, motor cars.

KREIS BROS. FORD SALES

An old reliable agency located in Midlothian, Ill., on 147th St. and Western Ave. Sales and Service for the Ford V-8 Cars and Trucks. 1937 models on display. Phone Blue Island 17.

Their business policies of fair dealing and courtesy have made them one of the most favored automobile agencies in this part of the state. Their liberal trade-in allowance on your old car, when purchasing a new Ford, is another reason for the success of Kreis Bros. Ford Sales.

A new Ford V-8 for 1937, presenting definite advances in streamlined styling and powered either with the eighty-five horse power V-8 engine now in use in more than 3,000,000 motor cars, or a brand new sixty-horsepower V-8 "economy" engine, which is a smaller counterpart of its elder brother.

Disclosure of the new lighter "economy" sixty-horsepower engine as an optional power plant for the Ford V-8 for 1937 will set at rest definitely rumors of a new "baby" Ford which have been circulated in the automobile industry for the past several years.

The new cars are available in both deluxe and standard body types on the single Ford V-8 112-inch wheelbase chassis.

Beyond the new appearance and the two engine sizes, two other features mark the new 1937 cars. One is a new all-steel body, with new one-piece steel top, as well as steel structure, panels and floor. The other is a new braking system, designed by Ford to give "soft" easy-action control.

A new club coupe is the latest of the eleven body types which are available. The five most popular types will be offered with or without deluxe equipment, and with either engine. The other six will be available only with deluxe equipment and only with the 85-horsepower engine.

The new Ford V-8's exterior styling is entirely new utilizing the streamline treatment to a much greater extent than formerly. The frontal appearance is sharp-nosed, the radiator grille being curved back deeply into the hood sides.

You should be among the first to have a demonstration of these fine new cars. Call this firm at once and arrange to have them show you the New Ford cars.

Mr. Ream is a man of high standing in the community and stands four-square behind every job he places his O. K. on. We wish in this skilled mechanics and understand review to refer his activities to our readers and friends.

The Marks Toggery

Harvey's popular store for Men and Boys, at 202 E. 154th street, offers a quality line of Clothing, Furnishings, Hats and Shoes of National Known Brands, "Where price, quality and service prevails."

Marks Toggery, has made it a policy to handle only the highest grade of clothing and furnishings at the most reasonable prices. Their stock includes a complete line of the best quality goods. They are the exclusive dealers in Harvey for these well-known brands, including, Nunn-Bush shoes; Thorogood work shoes; Ball-band rubbers; Lee overalls and work shirts; Mallory hats, Arrow dress shirts; Cooper underwear and the famous Rollins Full-fashioned silk hosiery for the ladies and many other leading brands.

This store is one of the reliable and substantial ones in this part of the county. The sales force are efficient and familiar with their stock and you are never urged to buy anything that does not look attractive or fit perfectly.

The owner of this store realizes that pleasing his customers, means his success, therefore, he at all times features only the highest quality merchandise. He never features bargain sales with goods especially brought in for the occasion. Every purchase made in this store represents a true saving, full guaranteed in every way by the owner as well as the manufacturers.

In conclusion, we wish to say that nowhere can be found better quality or service and we suggest that you make it a point to visit this popular store on your next trip to Harvey. Your dealings there will be satisfactory.

KICKERT'S MOTOR SALES

A reliable agency, located at 182 E. 155th St., Harvey. Sales and Service for Dodge and Plymouth Cars and Dodge Trucks. These fine new cars are on display now in our Show Rooms. See them before you buy. Phone Harvey 281.

Once again the Chrysler Corporation has proven their superior knowledge of automobile engineering by giving the public exactly what it has wanted and has been looking for since the beginning of the automobile industry, the new 1937 Dodge and Plymouth cars—good automobiles, made better, smoother and faster at prices within reach of all.

These new cars have many added features—all steel top—wider and deeper seats—flat floor in rear—no draft design and mcwfypetaoip draft ventilation—new streamline body design and many other fine features. See them today. "You'll be surprised."

These new cars are the result of years of experimenting, the spending of vast sums of money and a consistent refusal to accept any test as final. When you purchase a car from this well known agency it does not mean that the transaction is closed for they realize that pleasing the customer means success to them, and for this reason they are as much interested in your car as you are yourself. In order to make this possible they have at the disposal of the public one of the most modern and up-to-date garages to be found in this section of the state. The fact that this garage is provided for the public and renders a most complete service makes it the home of good service for all automobile owners in this section.

When the owners started in business they decided to give every customer the best to be had and for this reason the public has learned that in dealing with them they are sure of satisfactory service and work well done.

The Office-Holder Is Your Employee

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

No business enterprise of any importance can depend for success on the knowledge and ability of its top executives alone.

It must rely also on the quality and training of the men in the ranks—whether they labor in office or shop or field.

Within recent weeks there has become evident a growing conviction that this is also true of government.

Both at Washington and elsewhere plans are being discussed for better training of the non-coms and privates who hold or look forward to jobs in the public service. A federal agency has recently recommended such training as a step towards economy and efficiency. Its proposals are supported by private research groups which have studied the problem independently; by colleges of high standing which offer courses leading to careers in the public service, and by various state and municipal governments which encourage special training for their own employees.

But the one who should be most deeply concerned is the average worker and taxpayer. Why?

Because he, in the last analysis, is the real employer. He—with millions of his fellow citizens—constitutes the government, whether federal, state or local. He doesn't merely share in its benefits; he meets all its bills—including the payroll. The higher the quality of the public service for which he pays, the more he gets for his money.

And the service is likely to be higher in quality if his employees are chosen and retained on the basis of what they know rather than that of whom they know. Not only that, but the field is likely to be less overcrowded—therefore, less costly to the taxpayer who foots the bill.

If the American citizen would get his money's worth he must insist on ability not only in the top offices of government, but in the lesser jobs as well. This, too, becomes part of his responsibility as a shareholder in the most important business on earth.

The office-holder is his employee.

Orland School News

When the General Science class completes the study of a unit, each member of the group writes a story, which consists of a review of all the important ideas the student has learned. The following theme is one of the best and is written by Sherman Knox:

UNIT IIThe Earth's Surface

Probably the greatest of all the problems that ever confronted the scientist was the question of how the earth was formed. Little was known and few possible explanations were given concerning this problem. The majority of the people believed that it was put in its orbit by some powerful god and that it was formed from the bodies of other lesser gods. But these were only superstitions that were handed down through the ages. They didn't help the scientist much, so he had to form an hypothesis. This he did, and it proved to be a good one, for it is the only acceptable explanation today.

It is thought that a star was passing the sun while it was in one of its violent storms. The gravity of the sun being greater than that of the star, seized it and started it whirling about in an endless path. As this body grew older, it gradually increased in size until it finally took the shape of a huge sphere. Later it became large enough to hold atmosphere. Then plant and animal life could exist. This heavenly body is now known as the earth.

Inaccurate or incomplete observation of the changes and happenings within the earth may lead to faulty conclusions. Therefore the scientist must always be alert and must study his experiments and the things that the world is interested in with the greatest of care.

Most every true discovery in science forms a basis for another. For example, by observation it was discovered that the very dense, heavy materials tend to sink inward toward the earth's center. On this basis it was naturally believed that the lighter materials were forced upward. This action was proved to be true.

Many of the changes in the surface of the earth are brought about in this manner: Chemical action, while one of the chief agents of erosion, is also responsible for much of the building of the land surface. Water, a mixture of various chemicals and gases, dissolves rock and other hard surfaces in time, just as it would a piece of sugar or salt. When water is allowed to become idle for any length of time, more chemicals and gases are added to it. These aid in the erosive process. When the water finally evaporates, a rich layer of soil is deposited.

The expansion and contraction of a material results in a great wearing down effect. By experiment it was found that by heating a substance it expanded, and that by cooling it was contracted. The same action takes place in rocks and other materials within the earth. The heat of the sun expands the rocks and breaks them. The freezing of water in faults contracts and also causes breakage. Moving water is generally agreed to be the chief agent of land erosion. It carries away, rocks breaks down cliffs and mountains, hollows out huge valleys and deposits these eroded materials in various places. In a great period of time much land can be influenced by this force. However the ability of water to move materials depends on these two factors: The amount of water flowing and the rate at which it flows.

A large swift body of water can easily carry many particles, varying in size and form from small to extremely large pieces. In contrast, a small, and gently flowing stream can carry only the smallest materials. When deposited, they are usually sorted and stratified. That is rocks of different sizes and of different composition are placed in definite piles and then pressed into layers.

Glacial action is another means of leveling the land. When a large glacier moves the rocks from mountain sides they are loosened and carried in the path of it. When the glacier melts, the materials form into huge unsorted and unstratified piles. Being unlike that formed by water, they are easy to distinguish. Sand and other loose materials are carried about and scattered by the wind. When the velocity of the wind is obstructed, it drops its load. Sand dunes are formed in this way.

When a volcano erupts, it scatters a large amount of lava over the land. When this lava hardens, it builds up the land with hard igneous rock. This decays and forms very rich layers of soil.

Most of the forces at work today on the earth are believed to be the same as those of the past. Vulcanism has been active for millions of years.

Glacial action can be traced to the beginning of the earth formation. Diastrophism has always worked to change the earth's surface. By diastrophism is meant all the movements that take place within the crust of the earth. When faults occur in the mountains and the rocks slip past each other it is due to diastrophism. This force is also the cause of the rising and sinking of different parts of land.

One of the best ways of determining the age in which certain rocks were formed is by examining the fossils in the strata. If fossils of the various dinosaurs are found, the scientist knows that the formations were made during that age. This is an accurate way.

In conclusion to summarize all the things we have mentioned the main facts that we should remember are: that the earth is constantly undergoing great changes, sometimes the surface may rise or fall and still at other intervals parts may slip past each other and cause great faults. While some agents of erosion wear away parts of the land, they also build up others. These changes will doubtless go on forever.

Maximum Performance with Good Economy
Bore, 3.062 in. Stroke, 3.75 in. Displacement, 221 cu. in.

Two Engine Sizes - One Wheelbase
AND A NEW LOW PRICE

V-8
60 HORSEPOWER
Good Performance with Maximum Economy
Bore, 2.6 in. Stroke, 3.2 in. Displacement, 136 cu. in.

THE New Ford V-8 for 1937 is the most beautiful Ford car ever offered. It is built in only one size—one standard of roomy comfort and modern appearance. But you may have either the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum performance—or the new 60-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum economy. The smaller engine makes possible a lighter car—lower operating costs—and a lower price.

When you drive the 1937 Ford with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine, you are master of a power plant that gives everything you can possibly demand in speed and acceleration. Today, improved carburetion enables it to deliver its thrilling performance with unusually low gasoline consumption.

The new 60-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy in modern motor car operation.

We invite you to see this new Ford car, and arrange to drive one equipped with the engine that fits your needs.

FEATURES

APPEARANCE—A newly designed car. Headlamps recessed in fender aprons. Modern lid-type hood hinged at the back. Larger luggage space. Spare tire enclosed within body. Completely new interiors. Slanting V-type windshield opens in all closed cars.

COMFORT AND QUIET—A big, roomy car. Extra space is in the body, not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Center-Poise Ride further increased by smoother action of the long-tapering springs, with new pressure lubrication. New methods of mounting body and engine make this a quieter car.

SAFETY

BRAKES—New Easy-Action Safety Brakes, of the cable and conduit control type. "The safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Self-energizing—car momentum is used to help apply the brakes. Tests show that about one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

BODY—Not an ounce of wood used for structural strength. Frame structure all steel, sheathed with steel panels—top, sides and floor. All are welded into a single steel unit of great strength. Safety Glass all around at no extra charge.

Our present day homes, our office buildings, hospitals, and other buildings are eloquent evidence of applied science. Our forefathers would never recognize the old world if they could but return and view in wonder and amazement our accepted standards of living which today we regard as most commonplace—but in their times would have been the height of luxury.

On the shoulders of our present day plumbing and heating supply houses rests the responsibility of supplying the people of our community with those thousand and one items ranging all the way from pipe to the most pretentious and elaborate bath and shower.

The people of our community have come to regard the M. S. Frishman Plumbing House as an indispensable asset. All know this firm and will vouch for the efficient manner in GOUWENS BROS. FARM SUPPLY CO.

An old reliable firm located in South Holland at 15702 South Park. Handles a high grade line of Feeds, Hay, Grain, Seeds and Poultry Supplies. Dealer for Oliver and J. I. Case Farm Machinery and Implements. Phone Harvey 63.

Through their straightforward and above board policies this firm has established an enviable reputation in these parts and the farmers and the people generally have come to look upon this firm as one of the prominent concerns of this section. They bring thousands of dollars into this section each year that would otherwise go to some other center where their policies and service not so entirely satisfactory in every particular.

This well known establishment is known throughout this section as leaders in their special lines of business, the tremendous prestige of their experience of years as a prominent firm in this line, the practical knowledge that has won for them the recognition of the country at large and the patronage of thousands all add to the progress of the commun-

Features—Thankful

This is what some of the people around the school are thankful for: Mr. Dunn—is thankful for his good health.

Miss Leak—is thankful that the Freshmen boys aren't twins. (We wonder why?)

Mrs. Cappel—is thankful for her health and happiness.

Miss Doig—is thankful for her Mother and Father.

Mrs. Ferguson is thankful for her good health and kind husband.

Marvin Cappel is thankful that we don't have school seven days a week.

David Tierney is thankful for the Turkey on Thanksgiving.

Einar Monson is thankful that he is still living.

used, their prices are always within reason.

In their various departments they have a large stock of materials on hand. This is especially true of the repair department. This class of work is a specialty with them and they will do the work in a satisfactory manner.

Back of all the work they do and the materials they use the owner, Mr. Schwarz, places his personal guarantee. That is sufficient evidence of quality and workmanship for he is known as a good business man and a fair and honest dealer.

If you are planning on any work of their nature we could think of no more reliable firm than this one. We feel sure you will be entirely satisfied with any dealing with them. Give them an opportunity of serving your needs.

but win favor.

The owner Miss Stokley, and her assistants are experts in the line of permanent waving. They have many years of successful experience to their credit. They offer to women and girls of this community the kind of a permanent wave which gives your hair a sheen and luster a flat wave that is most beautiful, without kinks or friz and produces a wonderful effect.

Women who wish to improve upon their appearance, who wish to look their best in business circles and for social events can make no mistake in calling on Eileen's Beauty Shop and making an appointment for the work they wish to have done. Thus they are truly serving the community and maintaining an establishment over which the community can feel very proud.

which they serve both the community and the people making up that community. A visit to their headquarters will reveal a stock of plumbing supplies that certainly does great credit to our great city. Articles such as shower baths, built in bath tubs, lavatories, pedestals, stands, faucets, kitchen sinks of every kind and description will be found here in abundance. By virtue of their high reputation and many years of experience in successfully serving our community, this firm is recognized as being leaders in their line. A special feature with this firm is their policy of selling direct to the consumer, thus they are able to save the home owner many dollars.

In all, the M. S. Frishman Plumbing House is truly doing more than its share to promote more beautiful, healthier homes in our community. More than their share to make our buildings living monuments to our present day American standards of living. Their enviable reputation is the natural result of painstaking efforts on the part of the officers and directors to supply only quality products backed with an iron clad guarantee of complete satisfaction at reasonable prices.

ity in which their establishment is located.

In the way of stock, Poultry Feeds and Farm Supplies the management has made an exhaustive and scientific study of modern feeding and all feeds are made up with reference to their nutritive value.

No matter what problem you may have in feeding you will find the management can solve it for you.

The Oliver and J. I. Case implements, tractors and farm machinery known throughout the country as the best on the market. People who are in charge are courteous and accommodating, and will be pleased to demonstrate to anyone who desires to drop into this favorite trading place.

In the making of this review of the leading firms of this section of the state, we wish to compliment this firm upon the admirable manner in which the business of this valued concern is operated.

We wish to refer them to our readers as one of the leading firms of South Holland, and we suggest you visit this store on your next trip there.

Parents and teachers should warn the youngsters of the things listed below so that they will remember them and be guided by them.

1. Never cross a street without looking in both directions to see if any cars are coming.
2. Always cross the street with the lights.
3. Never cross a street diagonally or in the middle of a block.
4. Never step into the street from behind a parked car or moving vehicle.
5. Never play in the streets.
6. Never "hook" rides on trucks or wagons.

HOMWOOD RECREATION PARLOR

A modern equipped establishment at 18061 Dixie Highway, Homewood, where both ladies and gentlemen may enjoy bowling. "A most healthful sport". Starting next week "Every Saturday will be bank day."

Not everyone realizes that bowling is a healthful and pleasant exercise with all the requirements of a good clean sport. It has been said that bowling is America's passport to health. An hour of bowling will keep you a healthy man or woman.

The Homewood Recreation Parlor have equipped their establishment to meet all the requirements of the game. They have invested much money and time in selecting their alleys and furnishings and now have an up-to-date establishment where both old and young alike meet for recreation. Many ladies will tell you of their thrilling experiences after an evening of bowling there.

Bowling is now the most popular indoor sport known. It is played and enjoyed by both sexes and its popularity is perhaps due in a large measure to this fact. It is not a new game, having been played for something like five centuries, but its

OTTO'S MOTOR SALES, INC.

A reliable concern in Harvey at 15307 Broadway. Authorized dealers for the Oldsmobile Sixes and Eights. Their 1937 Oldsmobiles on display. For demonstration telephone Harvey 26.

This concern is the authorized dealer for the Oldsmobile. These cars are too well known to need a great deal of comment. The fact that the Oldsmobile cars are among the most popular with the public is sufficient evidence of their many fine features. This year's models have many new and added features and the demand is steadily increasing.

The 1937 Oldsmobile is presented in two types of styling offering a very unique change never presented before. The distinction between the Sixes and Eights of 1937 has been achieved by entirely different interpretations of styling on each car—different radiator grille designs — different hood louvers — different head lamps and tail lamps — different exterior trim and different interiors.

When you call at their salesroom you will find the salesmen are competent and able, being thoroughly familiar with the needs and requirements of the day and will be glad to show you anything in their line. When you purchase a car from this reliable firm you may be sure that the deal will be completed in a satisfying manner as they realize that in pleasing the customer means success to them.

Here is a progressive and reliable agency worthy of your consideration when contemplating the purchase of a car. Through their straight-forward business methods, excellent service and fair dealings, their success has been well merited.

TRAGEDY OF DEATH

It is tragic scenes such as this with its terrible indictment of lack of highway traffic regulations which makes us shudder at Death's increasing harvest of lives.

This graphic picture of shredded steel illustrates better than words the aftermath of a terrific crash of a truck careening head-on into a family motor car. The truck ripped open the motor car from front to rear. (Note the flattened bumper on the truck, also the out-worn tread on the tire.)

According to the National Safety Council the traffic death toll of the nation reached a new high mark in the first nine months of this year with 25,850 lives lost, with a council prediction that the year's crash fatalities will reach a record high of 37,500.

In highway casualties, truck accidents far exceed those caused by motor cars. It is revealed that the usurpation of highways by trucks has resulted not only in flagrant monopoly of public roads to transport business on wheels but that most of the truckers involved are irresponsible and do not have public liability insurance to cover personal injury and damage to property of others.

HARDLY ANY REPUBLICANS LEFT IN ILL.

Official figures of the Nov. 3 election for presidential electors, U. S. Senate, congressional representatives and members of the 60th general assembly were canvassed and released here today by the Canvassing board. Tabulations for state officers are not canvassed by the board.

President Roosevelt lead the winning Democratic ticket with a total vote of 2,282,999 while Senator James Hamilton Lewis came next with 2,142,887. The total state-wide vote was 3,995,088. Cook County polled 2,031,736 of this total and down-state accounted for 1,963,352 votes.

The presidential electors will meet on the call of Governor Horner on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December and will forward the official result to Washington, where on January 6 the President of the Senate will open the certificates and count the electoral vote.

The canvassing board which met this morning consisted of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, Attorney General Otto Kerner, and State Treasurer John Stelle, acting officially in the presence of Lieutenant Governor Thomas F. Donovan, who represented Governor Horner.

The canvass was completed in record time due to the more than usual preponderance of straight tickets which were voted in the recent election speeding up the count.

WARNS WILL CO., TEACHERS OF MORON DANGER

E. F. Booth, Will County Supt. of Schools has issued the following warning note to all school teachers in the county against the moron menace:

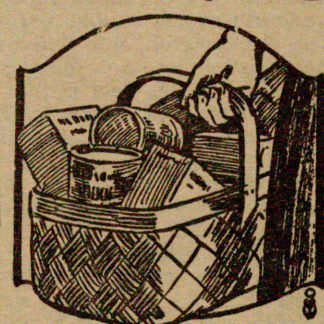

To the Teachers of Will County. Every now and then we pick up our paper and learn that some moron has abused some little girl or some little boy.

I would suggest that if anyone calls at your school with any sort of an excuse to take one of your boys or girls home, that you refuse this request unless said party is a parent or a brother or a sister of the pupil.

Preparing Class Work

Home Economics

Chicago (Special) — Confidence, along with a sense of responsibility, is instilled and a thorough training in socially desirable work is provided for 29,000 high school and college students in Illinois working their way through school at part time jobs provided by the National Youth Administration, William J. Campbell, state NYA director, announced today.

"These students," Mr. Campbell explained, "are not only able to continue their education through the NYA Student Aid but they are given desirable employment to equip them for the future. At this particular time it is necessary to instill confidence in youth and at the same time create within him a consciousness of the responsibilities of life."

Students receiving aid, he said, are employed as assistants to teachers in marking papers, at scientific research and tabulation of laboratory specimens, in offices, libraries and at other necessary tasks. This type of work, he added, is the spirit of President Roosevelt's plan inaugurated in 1935 to build youth for the future.

Illinois' Student Aid allotment for the current academic year is more than one and three-quarter million dollars, an increase of more than a quarter million dollars over last year's grant. The additional funds will be distributed in the drought affected counties of Southern Illinois.

High school pupils are paid an average of $6 monthly; jobs in colleges for undergraduates average $15 and those for graduate students $30 monthly.

HOLLETT MOTOR VAN SERVICE

With headquarters in Harvey at 15334 Parke Ave. Does local and long distance hauling, Moving and Expressing. All cargoes fully insured. Moving in covered Vans. Telephone Harvey 99 or Residence 466.

Those who deal with this firm are all satisfied customers. Moving of goods is scientific business that calls for a high degree of efficiency. Men must not only be strong—they must be trained so that your valuable and delicate furniture may be protected and not suffer so much as a scratch in the hauling and handling.

This company's years of satisfactory service in this field have made them well known wherever moving is to be done. Ready any hour of the day for quick transportation of goods, personal belongings of any nature or any class of merchandise, their motor trucks are a familiar sight on the streets of this community.

Prompt service and careful hauling are two rare traits that have been responsible for the large demand for this service.

This company has daily motor freight service to Chicago and nearby points. When they are given a load you may be sure it will arrive at its destination on time and in the best of condition.

They are a thoroughly responsible concern. You need not carry your own risk for careless handling of your furniture. It will pay you to be certain of such responsibility when giving orders for moving.

BREVITIES

Mrs. Laura Gilles, seventy-two, resident of Brocton for 55 years, died at her home there.

Maurice Castle, twenty-one, Rock Falls, committed suicide by shooting himself with a rifle.

William S. Baehr of Augustana was elected president of the Illinois Library association at a meeting in Peoria.

Wesley Gwin, thirty-seven, trip rider in Old Ben mine No. 8 at West Frankfort, was killed when caught between two mine cars.

A. L. Keck, seventy-five, former mayor of Cerro Gordo and life long resident of Piatt county, is dead. He was a member of the Cerro Gordo school board for a number of years.

J. W. Ross, eighty-six, of Walnut, president and organizer of the First State bank of that city, and the oldest banker in Bureau township, died at his home.

William W. Spence, eighty-two, a retired contractor, died at his home in Springfield. He and his wife observed their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary last December.

William F. Hodson, ninety, civil war veteran, died at his home in Delavan. He was postmaster there 12 years and was the last member of Delavan post, No. 155, G. A. R.

An automobile-truck collision near Litchfield resulted in the death of Mrs. Robert Newman and serious injuries to Robert Newman, her husband, and Mrs. Charles Hackney, all of Gillespie, Ill.

Public libraries in eleven Illinois cities benefited by appropriations authorized by Secretary of State Hughes from the $600,000 fund for the purchase of books and periodicals. They are: Cairo, $114; Streator, $274; Dixon, $548; Belleville, $918; Urbana, $432; Elgin, $478; Bloomington, $335; La Salle, $203; Ottawa, $402; Peoria, $2,779, and Peoria Heights, $214.

State relief needs for November were fixed at $4,336,825, an increase of 14.4 per cent over the amount estimated spent in October, in figures presented to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The commission allotted $3,000,000 in state funds—all that is available from the 3 cent sales tax—among local governmental units throughout the state. These units must raise the remainder themselves.

A total attendance of 67,135 in slightly more than two years time has been reported for the trachoma clinics operated by the state in southern Illinois where the alarming spread of trachoma brought about state action for the control of this contagious eye disease. Five clinics, to which cases from surrounding communities are brought by bus service, are established at Vienna, Herrin, Jonesboro, Harrisburg, and Shawneetown. The weekly attendance, as shown during the week of October 17 to October 24, is now more than 800.

David Roe, thirty-one years old, shot and killed his estranged wife, Wilma, in Peoria in the presence of a woman they had asked to help solve their domestic troubles. He then fired a fatal bullet into his head. Roe, a building material salesman, fired four shots at his wife in the offices of the Family Welfare association. Both had gone there to see Mrs. Winifred Smith, district visitor for the association. Chief of Police Fred Nussbaum heard the shots and hurried to the scene. He found both bodies in the hall outside of the welfare offices.

The state civil service commission announced two examinations, to be held December 12 and 17, in Chicago, Springfield, Champaign and Quincy. The first test will be given to applicants for the position of university junior stenographer. Positions included in the second examination are: Landscape architect, assistant editor (historical library), fireman, public health nurse, registered nurse, junior assistant research sociologist, senior assistant research sociologist, research psychiatric social worker, assistant supervisor psychiatric social service, editorial assistant and pediatrician.

Advances made in the care of handicapped children of the state are told in the annual report, just published, of the state department of public welfare. The enlargement of the Surgical Institute for Crippled Children, which is a state institution administered by the department; the application of the department for a federal grant under the United States social security laws to carry out a comprehensive plan for the aid of handicapped children, and the payment in full to local school districts for special instruction for handicapped children, are among the advances described by A. L. Bowen, director of the department.

Governor Horner offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the person or persons guilty of the slaying of Mrs. Elsie Lichtenwalter, Will county farm wife, who was found murdered in her home.

The rural church in Nine Mile community, northwest of DuQuoin was too small to accommodate hundreds of relatives and friends who came from many southern Illinois counties to attend funeral rites for Axum Major Revelle, 102. He was a confederate soldier under Gen. Stonewall Jackson. He died after a fall.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington — Probably sufficient time has elapsed since the election to give us something of a perspective, something of an understanding

What Happened? of what happened November 3. In that record-breaking vote for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt, there lie covered perhaps the greatest number of reasons why votes were cast as they were, ever to influence a national election. The results left the Republicans stunned; they were surprising even to the Democrats and that is no secret.

I have consulted with numerous among the better informed political students and political writers concerning the basis for this deluge of votes that came so nearly making the electoral college unanimous for Mr. Roosevelt that there had been only one time in history when the opposition received fewer votes in the electoral college than Governor Landon will receive. The inquiries have brought almost as many different answers as there were persons interviewed. Each one of these persons was thoroughly convinced that his diagnosis was correct and yet after hearing all of them I have a conviction that each one was only partially right. It was, in my opinion, a combination of reasons that brought about such an enormous vote for election of Mr. Roosevelt. The various reasons entering into that combination were influential individually only as regards a comparatively small percentage of the population.

How else can it be explained? Unless separate reasons operated in various sections of the country and, indeed, upon segments of voters in those various sections, no such thing could have happened as the election, for example, of Henry Cabot Lodge, a Republican, to the senate in Massachusetts, while Mr. Roosevelt carried the state overwhelmingly for himself as a Democrat. There were other instances where Republicans won in statewide elections while the state's electoral vote went to the President.

This necessarily shows that even in states that normally vote a straight ticket, either Democratic or Republican, there was some appeal which Mr. Roosevelt had for the voters that was non-existent insofar as the lesser candidates were concerned. In other words, there were split tickets and if this ever proved anything, it surely proved this year that the nation was overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. Roosevelt personally.

I think that, as always, the national ticket carried many men into the house and senate, only it is quite apparent that the percentage of representatives and senators elected this time on the strength of the national ticket was larger than usual. I mean that instead of local personalities carrying the national ticket, the national ticket swept in the local personalities because it is the tendency of a vast majority of voters to vote a straight ticket.

What I have just said seems really to complicate the whole picture. It seems to complicate it for the reason that such a paradox as the election of Mr. Lodge in Massachusetts occurred within this deluge of votes.

But whatever else can be said, nothing can overshadow the consequences of the vast power handed to Mr. Roosevelt. He is in complete control and has a right to feel that anything he does will be accepted by a large majority of the population. With the exception of George Washington, who was elected President by the unanimous vote of the electoral college, and James Monroe, who had all excepting one electoral vote with him, no President of the United States has ever been awarded such a verdict.

So, it strikes me that the outstanding question before the United States today is "how will Mr. Roosevelt use this authority?" It is in his hands to become a man of history, a man who will stand out among all of our Presidents if he uses his power wisely. It is to be suggested in the same breath that if he misuses or abuses that power he can easily become just as infamous.

I said above that there were so many reasons influential in bringing about the unusual vote for Mr. Roosevelt that it was almost impossible to enumerate them. Nevertheless, I shall try to set down some of the more important ones that appear to have been operative. It must be remembered that these larger reasons embrace numerous and sundry variations. Each of the important reasons is made up of a number of less important and less significant and even less influential reasons. Each of the larger and each of the smaller propositions had its effect.

I do not want to have it appear that the order in which I name these various reasons has any significance. In fact, I think it would be utterly foolish for anyone to attempt to say that one particular reason was more influential than another.

How, for instance, can any one individual know what caused particular voters to vote a particular way without knowing the individual voters concerned? So, I am simply outlining some of the reasons that the political students agree have been important:

That the federal government can or should interfere in the management of basic industries like agriculture, manufacturing, power and possibly in the commercial field of finance.

That the government can or should be centralized to a greater extent in the federal machinery as distinguished from the state machinery. This implies a disappearance to a large extent of the age-old contention for state's rights. It goes even beyond that and into the field of local government which, it must be said, has not been too efficient.

That the people, as citizens of the United States, ought not to be hamstrung by rigid constitutional provisions and strict interpretation of them by the United States Supreme court. This may easily be expanded into other propositions such as modification of revision of court powers; mandatory retirement of judges when they reach a given age, or constitutional amendments giving the federal government more direct contact with individual citizens and individual businesses.

Leaders Outmoded That the great business leaders of the last score of years are outmoded and that the time has come for a fresh start in business leadership just as the advent of the New Deal accomplished a fresh start in the political leadership. In this thought is hidden various and sundry possibilities. There are those, for example, who have become permeated with a hatred of big business. Likewise, there are those who feel that only portions of big business have been unfair and have crushed the little fellow. Aside from these two is a third group that surely feels the necessity for strict federal control of all types of business, good as well as bad, in order to prevent private initiative from getting out of bounds.

That many of our citizens are willing for the federal government to participate in business by direct competition with private initiative. This thought, expanded, naturally takes on the aspect of a broader movement for public ownership of various businesses than has been evident heretofore.

It is axiomatic that reasons effective with one person are not effective with another and reasons that operate to control the views of a county or a section of a state or even a region of states undoubtedly have had nothing at all to do with votes taken in other parts of our nation.

There are unsettled conditions. There are ten or eleven million people who are out of jobs. Some of these felt that they had been benefited by one Roosevelt policy; some felt they had been benefited by another. However one may examine the picture, it seems to me incapable that it was a combination of reasons and not any single proposition. It may be added, as some honestly feel, that the Roosevelt political machine was able to encompass all of these factors and to show in the various sections of the country how effective particular policies had been in those particular sections. That to my mind is going beyond the scope of intelligence because strong as the Roosevelt political machine is, it had to have and had to hold the faith of an extraordinarily large number of voters in addition to those controlled by the machine in order to roll up a majority of nine million votes.

So, again we get back to the question: what will Mr. Roosevelt do with this new mandate, this fresh delegation of power that has been given to him?

Already there are signs developing among the old line, conservative Democrats of a desire to persuade him to be less radical than he was in his first four years as President. These Democrats feel that this country needs a little less of reform and considerably more of sound governmental management. How much effect they will have on general administration policies obviously is problematical. It is problematical because included among the new senators and representatives, especially among the representatives, are many men who do not impress me as having the slightest understanding of governmental functions. Consequently, from these and from those wild eyes already in the house membership, we undoubtedly will see some of the worst harum scarum pieces of legislation ever proposed in the national house of representatives.

It is such circumstances as are presented in the type of legislation that I named that will test Mr. Roosevelt's real capacity as a statesman.

"The Man Who-o-o"

Tales and Traditions from American Political History
BY FRANK E. HAGEN AND ELMO SCOTT WATSON

INSURGENTS

FORMATION of the Union party for this year's campaign and its nomination of Representative William Lemke of North Dakota for President recalls some of the other "insurgent" parties which have played their part in our political history. The first of these was the Peace party of 1812-15, composed of Democrat-Republicans and Federalists, mostly in New England, who opposed the War of 1812.

In 1824 there was a People's party, composed of Democrat-Republicans, who favored choosing electors by the people and in 1825 there was a Coalition party, so-called from the union of the supporters of Henry Clay with those of John Quincy Adams to elect Adams. There was an Anti-Masonic party in the field from 1827 to 1834 and in 1840-41 the Abolitionists formed the Liberty party. The Free Soil party, which later became the modern Republican party, was formed of Liberty party members, Whigs and Democrats, who opposed slavery.

The American party, popularly known as the "Know-Nothing party" was formed from members of other parties who became dissatisfied with the influx of foreigners and first raised the cry of "America for Americans!" In 1860 it was merged with the Constitutional party.

In this same year there were two Democratic parties—the Douglas Democrats (Northern) and the Breckenridge Democrats (Southern). In 1872 dissatisfied Republicans and pro-war Democrats formed the Liberal Republican party and nominated Horace Greeley for President. Other Democrats who wouldn't vote for Greeley, formed the "Straight Out" or "Tap Root" Democratic party, which nominated Charles O'Connor.

In 1884 there was an Anti-Monopoly party which nominated Benjamin F. Butler of Massachusetts but which died a-borning. In that same year "bolters" from the Republican party who refused to support Blaine, the nominee, became the "Mugwumps" and supported Cleveland, the Democratic nominee. In 1896 there were "bolters" from both parties. Free silver advocates, led by Senator Teller of Colorado, left the Republican party, and "gold Democrats" deserted that party and its nominee, William J. Bryan, formed a "National Democrat" party and nominated two former Civil war generals—John M. Palmer of Illinois for President and Simon B. Buckner of Kentucky for vice-president.

Last but not least was the split in the Republican party in 1912 which resulted in the formation of the Progressive party under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt and the consequent victory of Wilson over Taft.

THE SALEM WITCHES PARADE

IF, IN 1888, you had read in the papers this headline: "Salem Witches to Parade for Harrison Tonight," you would probably have rubbed your eyes to make sure that you weren't seeing double and mixing up Seventeenth and Nineteenth century history into an amazing anachronism. But the fact is that the Salem Witches did march for Harrison in 1888 and for the next 20 years they were a striking feature of many a campaign torchlight procession in Massachusetts and other states.

The Salem Witches were members of three militia units who dressed up in a uniform consisting of a Mother Hubbard dress with a white yoke on which was displayed pictures of Harrison and Morton, the Republican presidential and vice-presidential nominees, and a skirt of red, white and blue stripes dotted with stars. A scarlet cape, worn with one-half thrown back over the shoulder, was another striking feature and with it was worn a poke bonnet with a high crown. Each of the "girls" carried a broom torch.

At about the time the Salem Witches campaign battalion was organized in Salem, Republicans in Haverhill, Mass., organized the Brother Jonathans. Members of these two clubs became great friends and it was their practice to "double up" after the parade had proceeded a short distance with each "Brother Jonathan" gallantly escorting a "Salem Witch."

Many and varied have been the marching clubs which took part in torchlight parades in campaign years but there has never been a more striking one than the "Salem witches" of the campaign of 1888.

First Doctor in Virginia Colony

The first doctor in the Virginia colony was Laurence Bohone, who arrived in 1610 and was killed in 1622 when the vessel "Margaret and John" was attacked by Spanish ships. There may have been doctors attached to previous expeditions but these cannot be considered to have practiced in this country. The first doctor in New England was Dr. Samuel Fuller, who arrived on December 21, 1620, on the Mayflower.

The Gifts Renewed

In fields but lately seared by summer's drought,
Where famine seemed to lay its withering hand,
A miracle has come to still our doubt
And spread a glad Thanksgiving through the land.

Unseen beneath the drab brown coat she wore,
The soil grew rich to nurture other seeds.
Then autumn rains released the hidden store
In verdant growths, to fill our winter needs.

So, God of Wisdom, may we learn to build
In quiet faith, through even darkest days;
Assured our destiny will be fulfilled
Through Thy inscrutable and wondrous ways.

Dwight Pennington, in Kansas City Times

Why we have Thanksgiving Turkey

THREE times a year, at Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, the people of the United States advance upon a certain huge golden bronze fowl, cut its throat, strip it of its plumage and convert it into a savory dish which fairly makes the old table groan under the extra burden. Since we have raised this bird into a national significance which parallels to an almost equal degree that of the eagle, symbol of the government itself, it has a special interest to all Americans. Although many folks may still be "as poor as Job's turkey," says a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, they somehow manage and contrive to have turkey for Thanksgiving, whether they can or cannot afford it.

In years gone by those families who could not afford turkey turned to chicken, duck, beef, rabbit, or even pork and were glad to get it.

But now let's get back to the question of why we have or try to have or would like to have or imagine we would like to have turkey for Thanksgiving dinner. The answer of course is that the turkey is strictly an American bird and serving it at feasts of thanksgiving is an old and ancient American custom. Some authorities will tell you that we eat turkey on Thanksgiving day because after the first harvest in the fall of 1621 the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth set aside a period for feasting and offering thanks. To provide food for this feast hunters were sent out by Governor Bradford and they returned with a large supply of game. Hospitality was extended to the Indians, 91 of whom attended the festival which lasted for three days. Conspicuous among the game on the tables were numerous wild turkeys, then common in the woods of Massachusetts. From this circumstance, they say, arose the popular association of these birds with thanksgiving days.

The Turkey Is Regarded as an American Bird.

This of course is the true origin of the custom so far as white man has been concerned with it. But the origin of turkey feasts goes back much farther. The millions of families who plan on enjoying hearty Thanksgiving turkey dinners this year will in reality be observing a custom that prevailed ages before the Pilgrims first gathered around their festive board in New England. Smithsonian institution records now bridge the years that veil the aboriginal civilizations and show that the Indians of the Southwest domesticated turkeys and fattened them for their ceremonial feasts. While the Pilgrim Fathers, grateful for good harvests and a year of prosperity in the New World decided on a day of thanksgiving to be celebrated at a banquet of roast turkey, really gave posterity the spirit of thanksgiving, the practice of such feasts had been established long before by the cliff dwellers who actually got their birds from a pen as we do today and not from a thicket as the Pilgrims did.

According to Smithsonian records the turkey of the aboriginal Indians more nearly approximated the

When the Festive Bird Goes Into the Oven.

Thanksgiving turkey of today than the scrawny wild fowl felled by the blunderbuss of the Pilgrim huntsman. Most of our domesticated varieties of turkeys today are really descended from the Mexican wild turkey that ranged over Arizona, western New Mexico and southern Colorado — virtually the dooryard of earliest American civilization. The Pilgrim turkey was merely the wild variety of the same bird which roamed the eastern part of the United States.

Just as the turkey was exclusively an American bird in the time of the aboriginal Indians, so it is today. No fowl from any foreign country approximates it. In fact, wherever turkeys are raised today, and they have been introduced to many foreign countries, the ancestral stock came from America. And so far as is known turkeys are never imported to this country. Contrary to popular opinion the turkey did not get its name from Turkey (the country of that name). The first turkeys taken from the New World (America) and sold in Spain were handled largely by Hebrew merchants. Since the turkey was frequently confused with the peacock it was quite natural that the Hebrew trades should apply to it their name for the peacock, or "tukki." More or less common use of this name followed, which easily became in English our present name "turkey."

THE JUDGE SAYS:
"THANKSGIVING is approaching — it's time we told ourselves over and over again the things about which we should be thankful. There are plenty of those things. But, most important of all, I think, is the chance given to make ourselves happy again."—Judge Harry B. Keidan.

Thanksgiving Day

NO DOUBT the same old question will be asked that we have so often heard — what have we to be thankful for? The question is foolish, almost as foolish as the attempts to answer it. Thanksgiving means gratitude, and there is probably no man alive who does not hold ingratitude to be one of the blackest sins. Of course, there can be no gratitude except as it is shown not only for something but to some one. Therefore, observes a writer in the Indianapolis News, it is that the thought of Thanksgiving necessarily implies the existence of a Divine Giver and Benefactor. So we are bidden to return thanks to Almighty God as "the Giver of every good and perfect gift." When there seems to be a scarcity of gifts one is tempted to ask the question, why be thankful? And that is a question which every one must answer for himself, and it will be answered as it always has been, in different ways. It is futile to catalogue what we know to be blessings and what we believe to be anything but blessings, and set off one list against the other, and be thankful in proportion as the good exceeds the evil.

Carlyle long ago showed us the folly of the bookkeeping method as applied to things spiritual. Probably most people get out of life about what they deserve and in proportion to what they put into it. It seems to be true that the most thankful people are those who have the least. On the other hand, those who are surfeited with good things take them as matters of course, as their due, and so calling for no gratitude. The question seems to be whether one has a thankful spirit, which surely is something to be greatly desired.

Without it, man is less than man. Even beasts are grateful. Practically, the question suggested by the day touches character. There is nothing mechanical or formal about it. One can not pump up thankfulness, and the setting apart of a day does not suggest that there should be such an attempt. The day is rather a recognition, less of a duty than of an opportunity which it would be or might be fatal to neglect. "Be ye thankful" is an apostolic command. It ought to be easy to obey. Those men are nearest the truth who feel that in this life nothing is due them, and that whatever they get is in a very true sense a gift, and one which may be far beyond their deserts. So we are called to keep another Thanksgiving day, which should bring an outpouring of not only thankful but kindly hearts. Appropriate to the day is Pope's well-known verse:

Teach me to feel another's woe,
To hide the fault I see;
That mercy I to others show,
That mercy show to me.

A flock of approximately 300 ducks recently lit in the forest preserve near Orland Park, but as the preserve is protected by the county against hunting, hunters were much disappointed at not being able to shoot the ducks, but the birds finally flew out of the protection of the forest preserve and landed near-by corn fields and then the slaughter began. It is estimated that only about 50 ducks remain of the original flock of 300.

Last Sunday a small army of hunters from out of town appeared and not knowing the forest preserve boundaries, landed over in the forbidden territory and 12 hunters were arrested.

A large number of Orland People attended the opening of the Harris-Schmadeke Funeral Home in Joliet Sunday afternoon.
